The Japanese education system consists of 6 years of elementary school, 3 years of junior high school, 3 years of senior high school, and 4 years of university. Children usually begin elementary school at the age of 6, junior high at 12, senior high at 15 and university when they are 18. In addition to 4-year universities, there are 2-year junior colleges and various technical schools.

Elementary and junior high school are compulsory education. Foreign national children are exempt from this obligation; however, those who desire to attend may do so.

The academic year begins in April and finishes at the end of March the following year. Most schools have 3 semesters: 1st – April to August; 2nd – September to December; and 3rd – January to March. However, some schools just have 2 semesters: the 1st – April to September; and 2nd – October to March. All classes are conducted in Japanese.

Many children attend kindergarten or nursery school before they enter elementary school.

*A new type of school, "Compulsory Education School", was established in April 2016, to provide compulsory education consistently from elementary school to junior high school.

1 Kindergarten

Kindergartens help prepare children from ages 3 to 5 for elementary school (target age group may vary for each institution). Though many Japanese children attend kindergarten, it is not compulsory. It is standard for kindergartens to operate for 4 hours a day. Although kindergarten begins in April each year, you must apply by a specified date in the previous academic year.

As the fees charged, procedures for enrolling a child in kindergarten, and target age group differ between institutions, please contact the Municipal Board of Education in your area regarding public kindergartens, and contact individual kindergartens directly regarding private institutions within the prefecture.

You can search for private kindergartens in Saitama Prefecture at the site below.

For Centers for Early Childhood Education and Care (nintei kodomo-en), see Chapter 5.4: Nurseries and Centers for Early Childhood Education and Care.

Saitama Prefecture has published "The Three Sprouts: A Brief Childcare Guide," a leaflet that outlines skills that children should learn before enrolling in elementary school. These skills are divided into three broad categories: "Daily Life," "Interacting with Others," and "Curiosity & Caring," for easy reference. To access these leaflets (in simple Japanese, English, Chinese, Spanish, Portuguese, Tagalog, Korean, Vietnamese, and Indonesian in addition to Japanese), visit the following website. All of these are listed on the website and can be used as needed.

2 Elementary and Junior High School

If you would like to enroll your child in a public elementary or junior high school in Saitama, you need to go to the Board of Education at your local municipal or ward office (for residents of Saitama City), present your child's Resident Record, and complete the application forms. The Board of Education will notify you of which school your child should attend.

(1) Elementary School

Children must be 6 years old as of April 1 when they enter elementary school. Enrollment for first graders is conducted around September of the previous year. If your child's enrollment is accepted, a "Notification of Admission" (shugaku tsuchisho) will be sent to you in January.

For children with disabilities, there are special needs classes available, as well as special needs support for students in non-special needs classes.

(2) Junior High School

First grade students must be 12 years of age as of April 1 when they enter junior high school. In January each year, a “Notification of Junior High School Admission” (chugakko shugaku tsuchisho) is sent to children who are scheduled to graduate from elementary school that same year.

Almost all junior high schools require students to wear school uniforms. For information on where to buy your child’s uniform, contact the school directly.

For children with disabilities, there are special needs classes available, as well as special needs support for students in non-special needs classes.

(3) Transfer

If your child has studied at an elementary or junior high school overseas and you want them to continue their studies at an elementary or junior high school in Saitama, convey this to the board of education of your local municipal or ward office (for residents of Saitama City) after completing resident registration procedures.

(4) Changing Schools

If your school zone changes as a result of moving, your child will have to change schools.

Before you move, please ask your child’s current school for a certificate of enrollment and textbook list. When you submit your notice of moving out at your current municipal or ward office, be sure to report that your child attends elementary or junior high school. After you move, you should report that your child is of elementary or junior high school age to your new municipal or ward office. Please also submit the certificate of enrollment and textbook list to your child’s new school.

If you will be leaving Japan permanently, please also notify the school before leaving.

(5) School Costs

Students of public elementary and junior high schools in Saitama are not charged for enrollment, course, and textbook fees. However, the student’s guardians must pay for other study materials and meals provided by the school. To pay these fees, many guardians set up an account at a bank specified by the school from which expenses are automatically deducted.

(6) PTAs (Parent Teacher Associations)

Parents or guardians and teachers cooperate to increase their understanding of children’s education both in school and at home and to support the growth and development of the children. While participation is optional, parents join PTAs when they enroll their children at most public elementary and junior high schools. Joining procedures and fees differ from school to school, so please contact your child’s school directly for more information.

(7) After School Children's Club (After School Child Care)

After school care is available for elementary school students whose parents or guardians are unable to take care of them after school because of work commitments, etc. Since the cost of this service and the application procedures differs from location to location, please contact the Child Welfare Division of your local municipal or ward office for further information.

(8) Education for Children Who Do Not Speak Japanese

Japanese language teaching staff is available at some schools that have many students who do not speak Japanese. The Saitama Prefectural Government has also provided information useful for school life and daily life, which can be accessed via the following website: <http://www.pref.saitama.lg.jp/f2214/kikokugaikokujinsapoutojigyoushou240120.html>

(9) Guidebook for Starting School for Non-Japanese Parents and Guardians

The Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology has written a "Guidebook for Starting School" oriented toward non-Japanese parents and guardians, which explains the procedures for entering Japanese schools in a number of languages. It can be viewed from the following URLs:

3 Senior High School

Senior high school education is not compulsory in Japan. There are 4 different types of senior high schools: national, prefectural, municipal and private. These schools can be further divided into ones that offer a standard curriculum such as English, Mathematics, Japanese, Science, and Social Studies, and others that specialize in fields such as Commerce, Industry, Agriculture, etc. for occupation-specific study. Some schools are beginning to offer a new subject called integrated studies as part of their curriculum to encourage students to think about their future path. Students can choose from various methods of studying: full-time from morning, part-time*, or by correspondence*.

* Some students work while studying part-time or via correspondence. Part-time students usually attend night classes. In correspondence courses, students attend class on designated school days approximately 3 times a month, and otherwise study at home and submit their work to the school. There are also part-time high schools which offer classes during the daytime and evening.

For more information, see the “Part-time and Correspondence High School” section on the Saitama Prefectural Board of Education website:

(1) Entrance Examinations

To be eligible to take entrance exams, you must have graduated or expect to graduate from a Japanese junior high school or an equivalent thereof. Alternatively, if you have completed at least 9 years of formal education overseas, you may take this exam after completing procedures for obtaining a certificate that demonstrates your eligibility to apply to high school.

High school entrance examinations and classes are conducted in Japanese.

Public high schools in Saitama administer standard entrance examinations on a pre-determined day. National and private schools differ in regards to their entrance examination schedule and admission requirements. Please contact the school you wish to attend for further details. For information on entering a public high school, contact the junior high school you currently attend.

English: <https://www.pref.saitama.lg.jp/f2208/r5englishfaq.html>

(2) School Costs

There are admission and course fees as well as the cost of textbooks and other study materials.

At public prefectural high schools, financial aid based on income and scholarship allowances are available. Admission fees also may be exempted depending on income.

Tuition and costs for private high schools vary, but students at private high schools may also be eligible to receive financial aid or scholarship allowances depending on income level. Furthermore, in the event a student enrolls in a private high school located within Saitama Prefecture, admission and course fees and other costs may also be reduced based upon income level and other factors.

You may also be required to pay into a fund for costs such as school trips and excursions and pay PTA membership fees. These fees are different for every school. For further information, please contact the school directly.

(3) Changing Schools

After entering a prefectural high school, if a family moves to another district, the student may request to not change schools. In this case, the student can continue to attend their current school.

However, if you would like to change to a school closer to your new address, you will be required to take a transfer entrance examination. In this case, first consult with the high school you are currently attending.

(4) Special Selection of International Students

Special admission procedures are in place for those who arrived to Japan recently. These differ from the usual entrance examination procedures, so please consult with the schools which offer special admission procedures.

12 schools offered this special selection for the 2023 school year (beginning April 2023). These schools were Iwatsuki High School, Soka Minami High School, Nanryo High School, Fukaya Dai'ichi High School, Wako Kokusai High School, Warabi High School, Kawaguchi Higashi High School, Kawagoe Nishi High School, Kurihashi Hokusai High School, Menuma High School, Niiza Yanase High School, and Misato Kita High School.

The schools which will offer special selection of international students for the 2024 school year (beginning April 2024) are planned to be announced in July 2023.

4 Special Needs Schools

These are schools which accept disabled students with special educational needs. There are elementary, junior, and senior high education departments that correspond to elementary, junior high and senior high schools (some schools have kindergarten and vocational departments, too). If you wish to enroll your child in an elementary or junior high school department, first bring the child's Resident Record to your local board of education and discuss it with them. If you wish to enroll your child in a kindergarten or senior high school, please contact the Special Support Education Division of the Saitama Prefecture Education Bureau.

Special needs schools carry out education for different types of disabilities, including visual, aural, intellectual or physical disabilities, or students with a weak constitution.

(1) Kindergarten

Saitama Prefecture has established three schools for special needs with kindergarten departments: Hanawa Hokiichi School (education for students who are visually impaired), Omiya School for the Hearing Impaired, and Sakado School for the Hearing Impaired. These schools are targeted towards children from the ages of 3 to 5, prior to entering elementary school, and require a consultation prior to enrollment. Also, all three schools accept consultations and offer day care for infants from the age of zero (0). Early specialized education leads to an improvement in visual and hearing impairments, and consultations at an early date are recommended.

(2) Elementary Education Division

Children who will be 6 years old as of April 1, have a weak constitution or visual, aural, intellectual, or physical disabilities, and need special education assistance are candidates for entering an elementary school education division.

If you are hoping to transfer your child to an elementary education division, please contact your local board of education by the summer of the year prior to enrollment.

(3) Junior High School Education Division

Children who will be 12 years old as of April 1, have a weak constitution, or visual, aural, intellectual, or physical disabilities, and need special education assistance are candidates for entering a junior high school education division.

If you are hoping to transfer your child to a junior high school education division, please contact your local board of education.

(4) Senior High School Education Division

Senior high school education divisions feature either specialized or regular courses depending on the school, so please contact the Special Support Education Division of the Saitama Prefectural Schools Department for more information. To enroll in a school, it is necessary to go through a selection process. It is necessary to have either graduated or expect to graduate from a Japanese junior high school or school for special needs, or the equivalent.
