Foreign nationals planning to reside in Japan must obtain a passport from their country and an appropriate visa from a Japanese embassy or consulate overseas prior to arrival (although some people may be exempt).

Foreign nationals who intend to enter Japan under any status other than Temporary Visitor must first apply for a Certificate of Eligibility for Status of Residence from a regional immigration authority in Japan. After the Minister of Justice verifies that you meet the conditions for landing under that status of residence, a certificate will be issued. After you have received your Certificate of Eligibility for Status of Residence, submit it to your local Japanese embassy, etc. when you apply for your visa.

Your period of stay is determined when you arrive in Japan. Once in Japan, procedures regarding your residency are handled by the Immigration Services Agency of Japan office that has jurisdiction over the area you live in. Foreign nationals who reside in Saitama Prefecture should go to the Tokyo Regional Immigration Services Bureau or the Saitama Branch Office of the Tokyo Regional Immigration Services Bureau for any necessary procedures.

1 Residency Management System

(1) Status of Residence and Period of Stay

Your status of residence and period of stay are approved when you enter Japan, and this information is indicated in your passport. The types of status of residence are designated by the Immigration Control and Refugee Recognition Act.

Excluding those with Permanent Resident, Spouse or Child of Japanese National,

Spouse or Child of a Permanent Resident, and Long-term Resident status, residents are prohibited from engaging in activities other than those allowed under their status of residence.

If you wish to engage in activities other than those permitted under your status of residence, you must first apply for and obtain permission. If you work in Japan without completing the necessary procedures to obtain permission, you may be punished or deported.

As a rule, you may only reside in Japan within the granted period of stay, and you may not reside in Japan beyond this period. In the event that you wish to stay beyond the granted period of stay, you will need to apply for renewal in advance.

(2) Residence Card

A residence card is issued to mid- to long-term residents upon being given permission to stay in Japan, which includes landing permission, permission to change status of residence, and permission to renew period of stay, etc.

A mid- to long-term resident is a foreign national who resides in Japan with a status of residence under the Immigration Control Act and does not fall under the following six conditions:

- ① Person who holds a status of residence of less than 3 months
- ② Person who holds a short-term status of residence
- ③ Person who holds a Diplomat or Official status of residence
- ④ Person with confirmed Special Activity status of residence, an employee of a Japanese office of the Taiwan-Japan Relations Association (Taipei Economic and Cultural Representative Office in Japan, etc.) or of the Permanent General Mission of Palestine, or family member thereof
- ⑤ Person who is a Special Permanent Resident (*)
- ⑥ Person who holds no status of residence

(*) Special Permanent Residents are issued a Special Permanent Resident Certificate

• Procedures at Port of Entry and Exit

A residence card will be issued to foreigners who receive a mid- to long-term resident landing permit stamp on their passport upon arrival at New Chitose, Narita, Haneda, Chubu, Kansai, Hiroshima, or Fukuoka Airport.

If someone enters Japan via another port of entry, a residence card will be issued by post for mid- to long-term residents after they register their address of residence at their local municipal office.

A Guide to Living in Saitama

• Procedures at Your Municipality

People who recently arrived to Japan or who have changed addresses must register their new address at their local municipal office. This can be done at the same time as submitting your Moving In/Moving Out Notification for the Basic Resident Registration System.

Person Recently Arrived to Japan

A person who is issued a residence card at the port of departure or arrival must bring this residence card to their local municipal office within 14 days of establishing their place of residence.

Person Who Has Changed Addresses

If a mid- to long-term resident changes their place of residence, they must bring their residence card to their new local municipal office within 14 days after moving into their new residence.

• Regional Immigration Office Procedures

Reporting Changes Aside from Residential Address

In the event that you submit any of the following reports or applications, please bring your passport, photos, and residence card. In principle, a new residence card will be issued to you on the day of your application.

① Reporting a Change in Name, Date of Birth, Sex, Nationality, or Region

Changes to name, date of birth, sex, nationality, or region must be reported within 14 days.

② Renewing Residence Card Validity

Permanent residents and residents under the age of 16 whose residence card does not have their photo on it must apply for renewal before the period of validity expires.

③ Reissuing Residence Card

In the event of loss, theft, destruction, damage or defacement, please apply for a new residence card.

Reporting Spouse and Affiliated Organization Information

Please have your residence card when you make the following reports. Alternatively, you can report to the Tokyo Regional Immigration Bureau of Japan by mail or via the Internet using the agency's Electronic Notification System. After reporting this information, a new residence card will not be issued.

① Regarding Affiliated Organization Information

For a mid- to long-term resident whose work permit type is “Engineer/Specialist in Humanities/International Services,” etc. (excluding “Artist,” “Religious Activities,” and “Journalist”) or “Student,” the following changes must be reported within 14 days of occurrence: changes to the name or location of the institution to which they belong (e.g. company or school), if the institution dissolves, the resident's contract with affiliated institution ends, and or the resident starts a new contract.

② Regarding Spouse Information

For a person who is a mid- to long-term resident and has a status of residence of “Dependent”, “Spouse or Child of Japanese National”, or “Spouse or Child of Permanent Resident” who divorces or become widowed must report this information within 14 days.

Residence Examination

For the following circumstances, you must submit an application and obtain permission before a new residence card is issued. Permission will take a number of days to be granted. For application processes (1), (3), (4), and (7), mid- to long-term residents will be issued a new residence card once permission is granted, but their passport will not be stamped to indicate authorization (however, people other than mid- to long-term residents will have their passports stamped).

① Change of Status of Residence

This is done when you wish to change your current status of residence (e.g. when an exchange student will work in Japan upon graduation).

② Permission to Engage in Activities Other than those Permitted Under Status of Residence

If you want to maintain your current status of residence and intend to engage in activities that are not allowed under this status (working for compensation, operating a business for profit, etc.), you must obtain permission in advance.

③ Acquire Status of Residence

This is needed if you are a foreign national who was born in Japan or a former Japanese national who became a foreign national within Japan and will reside in Japan for more than 60 days. This must be applied for within 30 days from the date of birth or from the date of becoming a foreign national.

④ Extension of Period of Stay

This is done when you wish to extend your current period of stay in order to continue engaging in the same activities. (Applications for renewal are accepted 3 months prior to the period of stay's expiration date.)

⑤ Certificate of Employment Qualification

This documentation specifies what kind of work a foreign national may engage in. However, whether the foreign national is allowed to work is determined by their type of status of residence and whether or not they have obtained permission to engage in work other than permitted by their status of residence. Therefore, the Certificate of Employment Qualification itself is not a work permit, and a foreign resident is not required to have a Certificate of Employment Qualification in order to work.

⑥ Re-entry Permit

In the event that you will leave Japan temporarily during your permitted period of stay, a re-entry permit must be obtained in advance. If a re-entry permit is obtained, your visa (which usually is required) will be waived upon your return to Japan, and your current period of stay and status of residence will still be in effect. The validity period of your re-entry permit is 5 years maximum (6 years for Special Permanent Residents).

However, if you have a valid passport and residence card (or Certificate of Special Permanent Residency), you will also be considered a re-entry permit holder under the Special Re-entry Permit system when re-entering Japan within 1 year of departure. (If the period of stay expires less than 1 year after departure [two years after departure in the case of Special Permanent Residents], this date will take precedence.)

⑦ Permanent Resident Permit

You must obtain this permit if you wish to reside permanently in Japan

2 Basic Resident Registration System

The Basic Resident Registration System for non-Japanese residents was introduced on July 9, 2012.

Under this system, a Basic Resident Register is created for each household and lists information such as name, date of birth, sex, and address. This register serves as the basis for providing government services.

A Guide to Living in Saitama

Procedures concerning the Basic Resident Registration System are carried out at the local municipal office. For details, please inquire at your local municipal office.

(1) Resident Record (juminhyo)

Persons who have an address and fall under one of the four classifications in the table below will have a resident record created for them by their municipality of residence. (This excludes tourists and other short-term residents, etc.)

A copy of your resident record is issued at the counter of your local municipal office, and this document can be used for various applications as documentation in lieu of the Certification of Registry.

① Same Entries as Japanese Nationals

Name, name of the head of household and relationship with the head of household, date of birth, address, gender, and items related to national insurance and national pension, etc.

② Entries Unique to Foreign National Residents

Nationality/region, date when they became a foreign national resident, and items described in the classification table below.

※ However, information recorded under the Immigration Control Act, such as an address or place of residence in the country of nationality, place of birth, occupation, and passport number, etc. will not be indicated on the resident record.

(2) Basic Resident Registration System Procedures

① When Entering Japan

When entering Japan with the intention of living in Japan for an extended period of time, please submit a Moving In Notification at the local municipal office in the city/town where you live within 14 days of moving to Japan.

② When Moving to a New Residence

Before moving, please submit a Moving Out Notification at your current local municipal office. Please submit this certificate and a Moving In Notification at your new local municipal office within 14 days of moving into a new place of residence.

③ When Leaving Japan

When leaving Japan for an extended period, even if you have a re-entry permit, you should submit a Moving Out Notification at your local municipal office.

(3) Basic Resident Registration Card

The issuing of Basic Resident Registration Cards (also known as a Juki Cards) ended in December 2015. Since the Individual Number System, also known as My Number, began in January 2016, My Number Cards are issued instead of Juki Cards. However, if you already have a Juki Card, you can continue to use it until its expiration date. If you want to apply for a My Number Card, please return your Juki Card at your local municipal office before its expiration date and follow the procedures in the section below.

- For details on My Number Card, refer to “3 Individual Number (“My Number”) System”.

3 Individual Number (“My Number”) System

The social security and tax number system, known as the Individual Number System or the My Number System, began on October 5, 2015. Under this system, every resident in Japan is assigned their own unique 12-digit number. You will need this number at public offices, your workplace, etc. as it is used for social security and tax procedures. This number is formally called an Individual Number and is popularly called “My Number.”

Both Japanese and foreign residents with a residence record are assigned an Individual Number.

(1) Individual Number System Procedures

① Individual Number Notification

If you completed resident registration after May 25, 2020, an Individual Number Notification is sent to you by mail to the address listed in the Basic Resident Registration System (the address on your residence record).

If the address on your residence record and address of the place you actually live are different, you may not be able to receive a notification in the mail. In this case, please consult with your local municipal office.

The notification will list your Individual Number. However, this notification cannot be used as a document to prove your Individual Number.

※ After May 25, 2020, the “Notification Card” changed to the “Individual Number Notification.”

② How to Use Your Individual Number

Notify your workplace of your Individual Number. Your workplace will use your Individual Number during procedures for national health insurance and taxes, such as issuing your Statement of Earnings. You must also show your Individual Number to your local municipal office if you apply for welfare benefits.

In some cases, it may be necessary to submit your Individual Number to a brokerage firm or an insurance company for use on legal documents for certain tax-related procedures.

(2) Precautions Regarding Your Individual Number

It is prohibited to use or collect information on anyone else's Individual Number except during procedures regulated by law (such as tax and social insurance procedures). Only share your Individual Number when necessary.

You will be subject to punishment under the law if you obtain or use another person's Individual Number illegally.

(3) My Number Card (Individual Number Card)

① Uses for My Number Card

Foreign residents who have been issued an Individual Number can apply to receive a My Number Card. My Number Cards show your name, address, date of birth, and sex as recorded in the Basic Resident Registration System, as well as your photo and your Individual Number. You can use this card as a form of personal ID.

Additionally, My Number Cards contain an IC chip with excellent security, and can be used for government-related procedures such as filing tax returns on the internet.

Items recorded in the IC chip include the information written on your My Number Card and an electronic certificate used when completing procedures on the internet. Other personal information such as your income is not recorded in the IC chip.

② How to Apply for a My Number Card

There are multiple ways to apply for a My Number Card. One way is to attach a photo (taken within the past 3 months) to the application sent with the Notification Card and submit the photo/application by mail. You can also apply online using a smartphone or computer.

For details about the Individual Number System, contact the services below:

4 Other Systems

(1) Acquisition of Japanese Citizenship by Foreign Nationals

① Naturalization

Foreign nationals can obtain Japanese citizenship by applying for naturalization to the Minister of Justice and if permitted by the Minister of Justice.

② Acquiring Citizenship

Foreign nationals under 18 years of age with at least one Japanese parent, or foreign nationals under 18 years of age with addresses in Japan who have lost (failed to retain) Japanese citizenship, may acquire Japanese citizenship by submitting a Notification of Acquisition of Citizenship to the Minister of Justice.

(2) Choosing a Nationality

Individuals possessing dual/multiple citizenship (Japan and another country) must choose one nationality by the age of 20. If dual/multiple citizenship is obtained after turning 18, this choice must be made within two years of the date dual/multiple citizenship was obtained. If a choice is not made, you risk losing your Japanese nationality.

Consultation and Inquiries

Applications for naturalization and obtaining Japanese nationality for foreign residents living in Saitama Prefecture are processed at the Nationality Affairs Division of the Saitama District Legal Affairs Bureau.

Consultation is provided based on reservation. Please make a reservation by phone.

(3) Family Registry System

In Japan, there is a family registry system in which registers and officially certifies identification information including an individual's date of birth, death, and marriage. Foreign nationals must also register this information in the Family Registry in cases where the foreign national is married to a Japanese citizen, etc. Notifications submitted are recorded, stored, and become official documentation for the individual.

Notification Type	Place of Submission
Birth	Family Registry counter at your local municipal office	Please contact your local municipal office for questions concerning deadlines and materials for submission
Death
Marriage
Divorce

These notifications must also be submitted to the Immigration Services Agency of Japan or your country's embassy (consulate-general). For details, please consult the Immigration Services Agency of Japan or your country's embassy (consulate-general).

(4) Name Seal Registration

Generally, name seals or inkan/hanko are used instead of signatures in Japan. Seals registered at municipal or ward offices are known as jitsuin (registered seal). The document certifying this seal is known as an inkan toroku shoumeisho (seal registration certificate). In Japan, both a registered seal and a seal registration certificate are required when entering any legally binding contract.

① Name Seal Registration Application

Foreign nationals who are 15 years of age or older (with the exception of those who do not have the sufficient capacity to make their own decisions) and are included in the Basic Resident Register can register a name seal.

Many municipal offices require the seal to be a minimum of 8mm x 8mm and a maximum of 25mm x 25mm; however because regulations vary, please check this at your local municipal office.

Also, the seal must represent the same name as that shown on your Resident Record. (If your Resident Record also lists a name you are commonly known by, you may also use that name.) Please note that only one seal can be registered per person. When registering your name seal, you will need your residence card or other valid documentation and the seal that will be registered. Seals that do not show all or part of your legal name or name you are commonly known by, or are made of rubber and other easily altered materials, cannot be registered.

Japanese seal registration is processed at the local municipal office of your residence. If you move to a new municipality, you must register this seal again.

② Name Seal Registration Card

When you register your name seal, a seal registration card will be issued to you. This card is required in order to receive a seal registration certificate.
